BRIDGE HESITATION.

The contract for the construction of the Chisholm creek Douglas avenue bridged has not been signed as yet, although the contract was awarded to Sawrer & Rankin some weeks ago. An effort was to be made to get the Electric rallway company to put up one third of the bridge which would call for $1,500. There is a disposition shown by some of the council not to put in the bridge unless the company pays for one-third. The company so far have not conceded that there is anything in its franchise compelling them to expend money in that way. The stockholders, as yet, have not passed a resolution to throw ney to the birds nor to throw it any where they are not compelled to. The "hence the theorem" would be that the company will not join the city in bridge building, in park beautifying or in any- 30. It will consist of a free open air cou

FROM THE FINANCE COMMITTEE.

To the Editor of the Eagle. In view of the recent action of the city ouncil on the bond question now before that body, and the adverse criticisms indulged therein as to the position taken by the finance committee, in the premises, we the members of that committee, desire to briefly explain our reasons for the course pursued by us in the matter:

On the 6th of May, the city sold to M. W. Levy, Esq., the bonds to be issued in Ita's destiny as one of payment of the several contracts for street and ally paving, then in course of construcre being four separate and distinct contracts in all.

By reason of unforeseen delays the city was not ready for delivering the bonds until about July 12, when objections were raised, by the attorney of the purchaser, to the form of the bond, and manner of issue, he suggesting the changes desired. Mr. Levy expressed his readiness to accept bonds, if his attorney advised that he could

The committee made no effort to dispose of them elsewhere as serious defects had now been discovered and the committee did not feel warranted in trying to dis tee did not feel warranted in trying to dis-pose of a bond which appeared to be tainted in any form, and besides, they believed that the objections could be overcome by proper action of the council, and that good faith required that the city should offer the purchaser a legally issued bond before undertaking to cancel its contract with him.

The objections urged against the validity of the bonds are in substance as follows: First—That the bonds issued were in ex-cess of the total cost of the several con-

Touched with legand and blended with truth, literature abounds in examples of such fraternal sympathy and sweet tenderness, that we are almost won to the belief that ideal brotherhood and tenderness of heart are only to be found in men and times of the past. The story of Damon and Pythias, and of Admetus and Alceste, glow in the attributes of angels, that they stand out as the choicest flowers and the richest gems that love or literature can dictate to the unfading charms of a splen- Douglas. selfish love, and melting tenderness, which so wins and moves us, is verily sometimes found in lives about us. All is here but the ornament of a legend and the charm of tradition. How sweet it is to find such purity of purpose and beauty of character is adorable in our eyes, let us be both frank and just in regard to these virtues and their possessor, lest by our silence we seem to bedim the shinning splendor of these giorious traits. For this we speak. And because we loved the kind and gentle spirit of our brother that soon as the silver cord was broken, took its flight, out of the frail flesh-tent that a while restrained it far up and off through wide and glorious far up and off through wide and glorious prospects, and starry plains, through Eden and through Paradise. Free and untrameled, he now has learned life's greatest secret and God's infinite wonder. For him the vall is rent, and his enfranchised spirit can well explore and full enjoy those fields reserved for spirit flights. The sights he saw before were but fragments of a vision. Now the heavens are opened, and he knows what light there is beyond our broken what light there is beyond our broken lamps. WOMEN AT UXFORD

Years for Their Benefit.

The association for the higher education of women in Oxford has just celebrated its tenth year of organization, and is well pleased with the progress made. There are now three hads for women students in Oxford-Lady Margaret, Somerville and St. Hugh's. The life at the different halls is the same in its broad outlines, although each one has its special characteristics. Each student has one room, which is used at night for a sleeping room and in the daytime for a sitting room and study. The daily outine of life at the college begins with the chapel bell at 8 o'clock; breakfast at quarter past 8. Students linger in the library to chat and read the daily papers for half an hour or so after breakfast, but by 9:30 o'clock most of them have gone off to read in their rooms, or to guage-or are identical with them, as in the case of the classical, mathematical, natural science and modern history schools. Most of the teaching for the "pass" examinations and for the two first "honor" schools is given by university lecturers and tutors at the association rooms. For the last four named "honor" examinations, the women stu dents attend lectures at the men's colleges, and read privately with university tutors. Honor students are admitted to Lunch at the halls is an informal meal which begins at 1 o'clock. The afternoon is mostly devoted to walks, tennis, boating on the Irwell, and other amusements. Four o'clock is ten time, and the festive time of the day in the halls. Tea parties are frequent, and guests come from without as well from within the halls. At such entertainments "shop" is taboord by etiquette. The time between tea and dinner is given to work. Another half an hour after dinner is devoted to social ers, and work begins again, to be carried on for a period long or short, according to the discretion of each student. Conca parties at 10 o'clock is a form of dissipaing society which holds fortnightly dis sions afternately at Somerville and Lady Margaret halls. There is also a tennis match between them every term Each hall has its own societies-literary.

A Dog That Prints a Paper.

Printing presses are usually run in this country by ateam, power, by water power, electric motors, and by main strength and awkwardness; but the machine that grinds out The Plain City Dealer. is run by dog power. A large wheel about ten feet in diameter and about two feet in width is connected with the drive wheel of the press by means of a belt. The Tact'ni at Ningpo has issued the following proclamation to agriculturists, in meter of six syllables: "Frogs are produced in the middle of your fields; although they are little things they are little human beings in form. A Tower Eiffel entirely of diamonds! This sounds like a dream. The reality, however, is not quite so dutzling as might be expected, and the model, which is no exact reproduction of the original conument, gains nothing in grace and beauty of outline to make up for the loss of grandeur and size. As it is, however, it is a very curious piece of work. The number of diamonds needed to construct this model, which measures thirty-nina inches in height, is 40,000, and they are set in rews on the silver girders. The only bits of color about it are the lower platforms, both in silver gift in two shades of gold, the enumeled flags at the four corners, and the suby and suppliers purposes, after that comes evening pray- set in the lantern, which is lighted by electricity and revolves by clock work Mesers Martin, Parno di Cle hoped to obtain admission for their jeweled tower at the exhibition, but it was completed tion that finds favor with the Oxford too late, so it is shown to the public in girls.
